

GANESH FESTIVAL

2018-2019

Jaihind college of Engineering celebrated Hindu festival in honour of the elephant-headed god, Ganesha. The festival is celebrated in public and at home. The public celebration involves installing clay images of Ganesha in public pandals (temporary shrines) and group worship. The festival generally lasts ten days, ending on the fourteenth day of the fortnight (Anant Chaturdashi) ,But college celebrated this festival for 5days in well mannered & disciplined. Funds for this festival are collected from members of the association, students &staff arranging the celebration. The Ganesha idols and accompanying statues are installed in temporary shelters, known as mandaps or pandals

At college, an appropriately-sized clay image is installed and worshiped by students with the faculties. Aartis are performed with all students & staff typically in the morning and evening.

The primary sweet dish during the festival is modak. Also Modak & Tug-of-war competition held at college premises during festival for promoting students to show their hidden talent of cooking, drawing & managerial skills. Various variety of Modakas judged by organizer Committee & given prizes for best innovative Modakas.

Modak Competition and Tug of War Competition

Jaihind college of engineering celebrated the Ganesh festival for 5 days in well mannered & disciplined. The primary sweet dish during the festival is modak. Also Modak & Tug of War competition held at college premises during festival for promoting students to show their hidden talent of cooking & managerial skills. Various variety of Modakas judged by organizer Committee & given prizes for best innovative Modakas.

It was really very good organized event & students also shown very good response by participation in large numbers.

At the end of the festival, the idols are immersed (and dissolve) in a body of water such as a lake or pond.

Prof. A. B. Mane
Cultural Coordinator